Introduction to HH Iraq case law

About this guidance Introduction to HH Iraq case law Instructional change after the HH Iraq judgement Reviewing Iraqi deportation decisions Detained, bail and restriction cases Cases where a deporation order has been served	This page tells you about the basis to the appeal of 'HH Iraq', heard by the former Asylum and Immigration Tribunal (AIT) in 2007. 'HH' is an Iraqi national who appealed against a deportation order. His complaint, amongst other things, was that to deport him would be in breach of the Secretary of State's published policy in the Operational Enforcement Manual (OEM). At the time of the appeal, it read as follows: 'Enforcement action should not be taken against a national who originates from countries which are active war zones'. 'HH' argued that Iraq should have been considered as an active war zone, and hence his case would fall within the scope of the above instruction, and thereby preclude him from deportation to his home country. The Tribunal found that the OEM was applicable to the 'HH' case because: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Iraq was currently a war zone, and• enforcement action was not restricted to the act of removal itself, but began well before that stage and included a decision to intend to make a deportation order. As a result of the tribunal's findings the decision to make a deportation order against 'HH' was deemed unlawful because the policy in the OEM had not been followed.	Links to staff intranet removed

Instructional change after the ‘HH Iraq’ judgement

About this guidance Introduction to HH Iraq case law Instructional change after the HH Iraq judgement Reviewing Iraqi deportation decisions Detained, bail and restriction cases Cases where a deportation order has been served	This page tells you the action taken to amend enforcement policy immediately after the handing down of the judgement in the ‘HH’ case, and its scope in other deportation cases. To avoid further difficulties, the relevant paragraph of the Operational Enforcement Manual (OEM) was revised on 14 December 2007, and removed altogether on 14 January 2008. As a result any decision made to deport to Iraq made before 14 December 2007 became unlawful. The paragraph was accidentally placed back into the OEM during a revision on 13 March 2008 and remained there until 17 June 2008. As a result, decisions made during this period must also be regarded as unlawful. The policy set out in the OEM applied to persons from any country which was an ‘active war zone’ and against whom enforcement action had been taken. However, there is no definition in the policy of an ‘active war zone’. As it was determined by the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal (AIT), and accepted by the Secretary of State, that Iraq was in a state of internal armed conflict for the purposes of International Humanitarian Law, this judgment is restricted to Iraq, and only Iraqi nationals come within its scope. Detention under immigration powers at the end of a custodial sentence can only take place in Section 3(5) 1971 Act ‘conducive’ deportation cases where a notice of intention to deport (ICD.1070) has been served, or where the deportation order has been signed. Where a decision to make a deportation order is incorrect or unlawful, any detention in line with this decision is also unlawful.	Links to staff intranet removed

Reviewing Iraqi deportation decisions

About this guidance Introduction to HH Iraq case law Instructional change after the HH Iraq judgement Reviewing Iraqi deportation decisions Detained, bail and restriction cases Cases where a deportation order has been served	This page tells you about which Iraqi deportation cases need to be reviewed following 'HH Iraq' and how to handle this process. The vast majority of cases affected by HH Iraq have now been cleared. However, these instructions will remain valid for criminal casework case owners dealing with any residual cases yet to be reviewed. If a decision was made to deport an Iraqi national before 14 December 2007, or between 13 March 2008 and 17 June 2008, the subject will require an immediate review of their deportation decision to limit any potential claims for damages. The caseworker assigned to the case may not be the person or team who made the original decision. They must immediately write to the subject informing them that the earlier decision to deport is being reconsidered and asking them to provide any new information they wish to be taken into account in making any fresh decision. All those being reconsidered who are currently detained under immigration powers will remain in detention (subject to the usual regular review process) unless a decision is taken to release them for reasons unrelated to the 'HH' judgment. The fresh decision must consider any material changes in circumstances but must not take into account the policy reflected in the Operation Enforcement Manual (OEM) before 14 December 2007, as this has been withdrawn. The new decision must be assessed against article 15(c) of the European Union (EU) Qualification Directive regarding 'serious and individual threat to a civilian's life or person by reason of indiscriminate violence in situations of international or internal armed conflict'. See related link: EU Council Directive 2004. If the new decision remains a decision to deport, a new ICD.1070 notice must be served. This new decision will attract a fresh right of appeal in the UK. At the same time, the old decision to deport must be withdrawn and any deportation order in force must be revoked.	Links to staff intranet removed

Detained, bail and restrictions cases

About this guidance Introduction to HH Iraq case law Instructional change after the HH Iraq judgement Reviewing Iraqi deportation decisions Detained, bail and restriction cases Cases where a deportation order has been served	This page tells criminal caseworkers how to prioritise deportation cases affected by the 'HH' judgement. It also tells you how to manage such cases depending on whether they are detained or subject to bail and/or other contact management restrictions. You must always deal with people who this guidance applies to and who are detained as a priority. Those who are on bail and/or restrictions are not as urgent as those who are currently being detained. You must remember that both the power to detain or restrict a person in this context comes from the decision to deport, and if it was made before 14 December 2007 or between 13 March 2008 and 17 June 2008, in Iraqi cases will be considered unlawful because of 'HH'. Therefore, the deportation decision must be withdrawn, and there will no longer be any power to detain or enforce bail conditions or restrictions, and no one can be removed unless a fresh decision to deport is taken following a review. Each non-detained case must be treated on its merits and prioritised accordingly.	Links to staff intranet removed

Cases where a deportation order has been served

About this guidance Introduction to HH Iraq case law Instructional change after the HH Iraq judgement Reviewing Iraqi deportation decisions Detained, bail and restriction cases Cases where a deportation order has been served	This page tells you what criminal casework caseworkers do if a deportation order has already been signed and served to an Iraqi national affected by the 'HH' judgement. For people who are in the scope of the 'HH' judgement and against whom a deportation order has already been signed and served, that order must be revoked and fresh consideration given at the earliest opportunity to take into account any new material facts. If the decision is to revoke the original deportation order and make a fresh one, both these decisions must be served at the same time.	Links to staff intranet removed
